BUCKINGHAM CAPITAL SUCCESSFULLY EXITS ITS INVESTMENT IN TRANTECH RETURNING 5.5X ON CAPITAL INVESTED

NEW YORK, NY, November 11, 2011 – New York-based private equity firm Buckingham Capital Partners completed the sale of its majority ownership in Trantech Radiator Products, Inc. to Industrial Opportunity Partners (IOP), a private equity firm based in Evanston, Illinois. Trantech is a leading supplier of industrial heat exchangers (also referred to as radiators) to the North American electric power transmission and distribution industry. The Company’s products provide critical heat dissipation for transformers during the electricity conversion process.

Trantech was the first investment made by Buckingham in its inaugural fund, Buckingham Capital Partners, L.P., a vintage-2003 vehicle that is now fully invested. Shail Sheth, Managing Partner of Buckingham, commented, “It has been a tremendous pleasure working with Paul Cooper and his management team during the last seven years to grow this business and provide an attractive investment return for management and our limited partners during a challenging economic period.” Previously, in December 2008 and in September 2007, Trantech completed two dividend recapitalizations. Cumulatively, the sale and the two dividends have provided a 5.5x return on the investment and a 1.2x return on the fund. Since Buckingham’s acquisition in December 2004, Trantech has grown significantly as electrical utilities spent heavily to upgrade an aged power distribution infrastructure, which experienced significant underdevelopment in the past 30 years.

About Trantech Radiator Products
